

ACADEMY OF DENTAL MATERIALS

Dear Valuable ADM Members, Dear Friends,

Earlier this year, we made an announcement to postpone our 2021 in-person conference to the year 2022.

As for this year, we are currently organizing a virtual conference for our dental materials community in order to offer a platform for exchange and presentation of latest research. This virtual event will take place between October 7-9, 2021.

The registration has now been opened and you are cordially invited to participate!

Please see our website www.academydentalmaterials.org for details.

As we could not see our specific meeting concept being easily compatible with an electronic format, we decided to run this conference in a different style. This year, similar to what we know from IADR meetings, we are accepting keynote lectures, oral presentations, as well as (moderated) posters.

We are further planning for the traditional (lunch &)learn sessions and to organize an attractive dental sponsor exhibition. Of course, our awards program including the Paffenbarger, and Marshall Postdoctoral award competitions and will be open for young investigators!

The ADM Board decided to make this conference affordable for everybody, so we reduced the registration fees to 50 USD for our ADM regular members and made it free for our ADM student members.

We hope to see you all virtually in early October!

Yours,

Ulrich Lohbauer (President and local organizer) on behalf of the ADM Board

P.S.: for your calendars, the 2022 ADM annual conference will be held in Athens, Greece between September 28 and October 01, 2022.
